Overview

If you use Rippling to manage time off requests and employee time tracking, when an employee has an approved time off request or there's a company holiday, it will be displayed on their timesheet, but it does not prevent the employee from clocking in on that day.

Because Rippling doesn't prevent an employee from clocking time, if an employee works on the same day that they have approved time off, or on the same day as a company holiday, they will be paid for both the hours worked and the time off or holiday. To avoid paying double, you can adjust the hours directly in the pay run.
