Overview

Understand how to navigate an employee's timecard and review key details for a given pay period. This includes viewing worked hours, time off, change requests, and the history of updates to ensure time entries are accurate and complete.

Note: This article applies only to the legacy Timecards experience. It does not apply to the new Timesheets experience.

View an employee's timecard

To view an employee's timecard, follow these steps:

1. From the main sidebar, select Time.
2. From the Time sidebar, select Timecards.
3. Select the appropriate pay schedule.

Note: If employees are not assigned to a pay schedule in Payroll, they are displayed under the No pay schedule option in this drop down menu. Learn more in this article about adding an employee to a pay schedule.

4. At the top, you can filter timecards by a pay schedule, pay period, or job (if applicable). The pay period will default to the current pay period.
5. Once you've selected the correct filters, manager will see timecards for employees that have clocked hours within that pay period and are paid on the selected pay schedule, and admins will see timecards for all employees. In this view, you get a detailed breakdown of hours across regular, overtime, double, and total hours. You can also quickly see whether an employee's hours have been approved, or are pending approval.
6. In the Approvers column, hover over an avatar to display the approver's name. Learn more in this article about time tracking approval policies.

Overview of timecards

When you access an employee's timecard, the following information is displayed in a summary section at the top:

- Workweek start: The day and time when the workweek begins.
- Pay period: Displayed as the pay period's date range.
- Hours summary: A breakdown of the hours worked, including paid/unpaid time off and holidays.
- Worked hours breakdown: A breakdown of the hours worked by job code, if applicable.

View as: Timecards (Default) ☐ Show only unapproved entries

Below the summary section, there are four tabs:

- Shifts: Displays all time entries for the pay period. You can view them in Timecards, Timesheet, or Timeline formats. You can click the more icon (three dots) associated with a time entry and then select View/edit time entry to review the timecard's:
 - Shift details
 - Approval process
 - Policies applied
 - Change requests and history

Tip: Customers on Rippling's legacy US Payroll experience can quickly see where and how time entries will be paid out by reviewing the Associated pay run column, which is a hyperlink to the specific pay run in which the time entry will be paid, or has already been paid. If Rippling knows a time entry will be routed to an excess hours run, this is indicated instead of a specific pay run. If N/A is displayed in this column, it likely means the employee is not assigned to a pay schedule.

- Time off: Lists all approved time off (paid/unpaid) and holidays (paid/unpaid as per the employee's holiday policy).

Note: If a time off policy is marked as confidential, any time off taken under that policy appears as "Out of office" when viewing the Time Off tab on a worker's timecard.

- Change requests: Shows all change requests submitted by the employee for the pay period. You can filter these by status for easier review.
- Change history: Displays all modifications made to time entries in the pay period, with the option to expand and review each change.

View an employee's clock in and out information

You can view an employee's clock in and out details on their time entry. If the employee clocks in and out using the Rippling mobile app and they are assigned to a time tracking policy with geolocation enabled, you can also view their IP location and IP address.

To view an employee's clock in and out information, follow these steps:

1. From the main sidebar, select Time.
2. From the Time sidebar, select Timecards.
3. Click the employee's row to view their timecard.
4. Click the more icon (three dots) next to a time entry.
5. Select View/edit time entry.
6. Select the Change History tab. In addition to the regular time entry details, if applicable, the IP address and IP location are displayed to the right of each time entry action.

Frequently asked questions

What does the "Existing entry overlaps with given closed entry" error message mean?

If you receive an error message when adding, editing, or approving a worker's timecard, that says "Existing entry overlaps with given closed entry. Existing entry: [...]," this indicates that there is a conflicting time entry that has already been approved. To troubleshoot, review the worker's timecards for a conflicting time entry. If there isn't an existing entry and Rippling continues to display the error message, contact the Rippling Support team.

Does the duration on a timecard include unpaid breaks?

Yes, the Duration field on a timecard includes the paid and unpaid breaks an employee has logged. For example, if an employee works from 9:00 AM to 5:00 PM with a 30-minute unpaid break, the timecard displays a total duration of 8 hours, which includes the 7 hours and 30 minutes of work time plus the 30-minute unpaid break.

Can a pay run be processed if there are rejected timecards?

Yes, a pay run can be processed if there are rejected time entries. Only the hours from the approved timecards will flow into the payroll run.

After an employee is terminated in Rippling, can they still complete their timesheet for the days leading up to their last day?

Yes, but only if their app access is not revoked immediately during the offboarding workflow.

- If you choose to revoke access immediately when completing the offboarding workflow, the employee's status becomes "terminated" right away, and they will no longer be able to access time tracking.
- If you schedule the employee's access to be revoked on a future date, they will retain access to time tracking until that time and can continue entering their hours.
